

THE SCIENCE OF AVIAN DROPPINGS

TAKE EARLY ACTION! Promote the control of intestinal disorders before they have time to become a problem at your farm. Looking close at droppings on a daily basis in the chicken house, as a monitoring system, allows you to identify the very first signs of an affected gut health balance.

This chart is intended to be used only as a guide to identify intestinal disorders at the farm. It is not supposed to replace the services of your veterinary doctor. Doses will depend on avian species, their age, and the extent of the environmental Clostridial challenge. Please contact Kemin representatives for an accurate support on the evaluation of your flock's intestinal health.
